* MARCH 1977

newsnews

The intrepid world travelers on the international news staff have been working hard and, I believe, successfully to bring northwest listeners intelligent and well-produced perspectives on the world beyond our borders. As this is the first news column in the program guide, it would be good to state our goal, which is to develop local awareness of international affairs, and to provide local people who are interested and involved in international affairs with a forum and focus for their energies. We reject the "isolated event" mentality of most broadcast news; instead we strive for day to day and month to month continuity where the significance of events can be appreciated in the context of the world which surrounds them.

A few of the global issues we have been covering and expect to see stories about in the next few months:

*The mid-east.

Can the Sadat government survive the demands of both its people and of international finance? Can extremists in Israel and the PLO delay a Geneva conference long enough to break up moderate Arab unity? Will Saudi Arabia hold down the price of oil if no settlement is reached?

*Southern Africa.

Will the West come to the aid of Ian Smith if a Marxist takeover is imminent? Can the Vorster government's control over so much of the area's resources and economy outlast the guerrillas and dominate the black nations?

*The new U.S. administration.

Can Jimmy Carter sign a major arms treaty with the USSR and at the same time express his concern for Soviet dissidents? Will hawks on both sides and third world nations fearful of superpower weapons monopoly let him? Will a Europe-Japan trade war destroy the "trilateral" concept?

We'll be exploring these and other issues beyond the news as well. A Latin America review has been added to Greg Harrop's long-running program on Africa, "Talking Drums," both once a week after the news, and this month we're adding a program on Asia. We've also started getting tapes from the United Nations, and will be doing more interviews and contacts with foreign newsmakers when they're in town, as well as local experts.

If any of this is interesting to you, tune us in at 10pm each weeknight. Then give me a call or send me a letter about your reactions.

-John B. Smith

changes

In the past five months, seventeen new daily, weekly, or bi-weekly programs have aired on KRAB. The collective pot of program producers and independent producers is growing and developing into what we at KRAB hope will remain, or become staples in your choices of music and information services. Next month, April, will mark a turning point in KRAB's history; once again there will be major shifts in the programming schedule, but this time certain traditional emphases at KRAB will be altered or changed altogether. The program guide will be of great help to you in keeping up with these changes, so if your subscription is about up, now is an excellent time to renew. All of us at KRAB would like to thank the many people who, over the last fourteen years, have supported the unusual and varied program format which is KRAB. Your continued support is vitally needed. We all hope that with some of the new programming concepts about to break forth, that support will continue.

ABOUT KRAB

KRAB is a listener supported non-profit radio station located in the heart of Seattle. There are no commercials interrupting broadcasts or influencing programs on KRAB. Basically, everything that is unavailable on commercial radio can be found at 107.7 FM. With a broadcast day of 18-24 hours, the programming runs a full spectrum of community interest, thought, and imagination: from renaissance music to international news, from afternoon jazz to Greek folk music, or maybe a new radio play from the BBC or an interview with Herbie Hancock; And how about Chinese radio hour, Latin music, environmental news and documentaries, bluegrass, city council meetings, Tuesday Night Live, Moon Over Morocco, community political reports.

KRAB has something for everyone to appreciate and support. And now is the time to get involved in supporting your radio station. Listener sponsorship is KRAB's only means of income. Whether you can be a $500 patron or a $25 subscriber, your contribution is warmly received (and don't forget tax deductible). With a subscription you'll receive the monthly program guide in the mail.

The people at KRAB urge you to turn your dial to 107.7 and become part of the freedom that is KRAB. If you have any questions, give us a call at 325-5110, we like to talk to all our friends.

KRAB is a collage of personalities and programs that directly represent the structure and purpose of an aware community.

We urgently need your support--Do it today.

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

On March 8, 1977 KRAB will celebrate International Women's Day. Beginning at 6 AM with a special version of Early Music by Natasha, continuing throughout the day and on into the night, KRAB will present programming by and about women. Women from KRAB and women from various organizations in the community are approaching the day from a wide variety of directions, in an attempt to share some of our experiences and our feelings.

Some of the programs will be aimed at increasing people's awareness of some of the problems women have, such as the issue of battered women, unions and protective legislation, the problems of older women, and the problems facing minorities. They also offer some possible resources and alternatives, and support, for women who must deal with these problems.

International Women's Day should also be a celebration, so in this spirit we will be presenting special readings and selections of women's music throughout the day. Some of the highlights include a selection of Katherine Anne Porter read by Peggy Deleers, readings by Asian American women poets, and two hours of LIVE MUSIC, beginning at 8 PM in the KRAB music studio, featuring some of the Northwest's finest women musicians.

Women do indeed have something to say. LISTEN!
